Deputy Marshal Assassinated.

JACKSON, Ky., Aug. 24.—The mail-carrier from Crockettville, eighteen miles from here, has just arrived with the news that a deputy marshal of Owsley county, was shot from ambush yesterday, on Ling's creek, near Crockettville. His body was pierced by a bullet from a Winchester rifle, but he was still alive this morning, though with no hopes of recovery. Eleven shots were fired. Hamilton was accompanied by young Riley, who was shot through the arm. The day there were four men in ambush, but they could not identify them. Hamilton has lately arrested a large number of moonshiners in Buffalo creek, in Owsley county, and it was for this, doubtless, that he was shot.

The story of his predicament is a singular one. He says he was educated at Oxford; was induced to try his luck at farming in Manitoba; went there about $3,000 several years ago; that he had crops near up the St. Charles, while he was sick with typhoid fever his partner took what money was left, and his jewelry as well, and ran away. Bad Place for Any One to Set Up a Gin-Mill—William Gregory, of Grange, Gets a Load of Shot in the Face—Other State News.

INDIANA.

The Subject of Drink a Very Potent One at Fairmount.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

FAIRMOUNT, Aug. 24.—The Marion communication to the Journal, yesterday, is erroneous in saying that the citizens of Fairmount have compromised with the saloonists on the basis of a twelve-hundred-dollar license. The facts are these: A petition has been circulated in Fairmount and signed by the people generally, irrespective of party, praying the town trustees to put a tax of $100 per month on the best-delivery business, which Morris is carrying on in the hope that the excessive tax will drive him from the business so far as Fairmount is concerned.

The saloonists, who are Prof. E. O. Ellis and Ryland Ratliff. Regardless of political ties, Fairmount's 2,500 people are against the saloon, and should Morris attempt the retail business he will find the road just as stony as it has ever been.

HARTFORD CITY, Aug. 24.—I. V. Smith, contractor for the big glass works in this city, has voluntarily made satisfactory settlement with the widows of the men who were killed by the falling of a stone wall recently. These several widows were paid in addition to the settlement of all funeral expenses by Mr. Smith. The coroner's verdict, as given before the settlements were made, was that the accident was "unavoidable."

The contractor's acts in paying the widows are generally regarded as extremely generous.
